FOR ENFORCEMENT

There can be no mistaken the attitude of the administration as regards prohibition. It is for enforcement; absolute and uncompromising. The question of wet states and dry states and the political value of the same has been entirely eliminated from consideration. The sober minded in Washington who have given attention to this matter believe that the question runs far beyond the observance or non-observance of a specific law; that is being fought out in America, is the question of the integrity of all laws.

Senator William M. Butler, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, voiced this thought in a speech recently in which he declared that:

"The real prize at stake was respect for law and order. We cannot afford," he said, "to allow the impression to grow up in the minds of the people that it is within the province of each citizen to pick and choose the laws which he will observe and those which he can disregard. The general adoption of such a thought will simply make for destruction even of our Republic. When a law is enacted, the right of a citizen to select a course of observance or non-observance has ceased, and we cannot make exceptions." Happily this most important phase of the question is gaining more and more attention from the people at large.

Sooner or later the federal government will be obliged to recognize the fact that the laborer is worthy of his hire, even though he carries on under governmental auspices. Considering the pays for services, not only expert, but extraordinary in their demands, the high character of the chiefs in the various divisions is remarkable. There is no denying that in many government offices there are small men to whom the $4,500 and $5,000 salaries they receive represent a considerable excess payment for the services which they give. But without fear of contradiction, it can be said that the number of $5000 men who are giving $25,000 service outnumbers the inferior ones. The whole situation is unfortunate. While public outcry is generally directed towards the elimination of the men whose compensation exceeds the value of the service which they render, it is well now to direct attention to this group who are making a contribution to the government far in excess of the amount that they receive. Inasmuch as under the law, the United States government is forbidden to accept any free gift from any of its citizens, it is about time that the letter as well as the spirit of the law be observed and that the men and women in the service be compensated with some regard to their real contribution. When it is appreciated that in the federal courts and in many disputes in the various bureaus and commissions men are receiving $5,000 are successfully meeting representatives of organizations and corporations who in many cases draw a fee of $25,000 for the handling of one solitary case, the amount of success which is attending the labors of these government servants is remarkable. The increasing difficulty of finding able men to accept responsible positions in the government is largely because of the fact that a man with a family cannot afford to throw his interest and the interest of his family to one side in order to give his services to the government, much as he may desire. It has always been understood that the President himself has held the feeling that the present situation, not only spells injustice to the able and competent public servant, but hurts the service by limiting the possible candidates for positions to those men or women who have sufficient of the world's goods so they can afford the sacrifice.

The Quest For The Fountain Of Youth

A valiant officer was made governor of Juan de Puerto Rico, the island that we call Porto Rico. He had heard that there was gold aplenty to be found somewhere in the new lands and, like every other voyager of his time, he was out for all he could get.

His name was Ponce de Leon. Early in the sixteenth century he received permission to discover and explore and colonize "Beniny" as the natives called our Florida. Now Ponce was growing old and he resented his gray beard. He longed for the light heart and fighting blood of his youth. So when a pleasant story of a fountain of youth hidden in the new lands came to his ears, he became an eager traveller.

No one had ever seen a man who returned rejuvenated from any such fountain, but faith was strong in those days and all men had faith. No one thought it ridiculous that Leon should start on such a trip. They all hoped for his success.

Ponce de Leon's ships reached Florida just at Easter tide and he named the lovely island, for it was believed it to be Pascua Florida—or Flowery Easter.

He did not stop to form a colony. No indeed. He went on looking for that fountain of youth before it should be too late. On he sailed around the peninsula, stopping here and there, and everywhere that there was a spring or a river, he paused to bathe. But no fountain did he find that would change his gray hair to black.

Though he left Florida for a time, he returned again in 1521, to find out whether the land he had found was really an island. He spent most of his personal fortune on this voyage.

The trip cost him his wealth. Nor was that all. In a skirmish with the natives, he lost many of his men and was himself so severely wounded that when he returned to Cuba, he returned only to die—never having found the fabled fountain he searched for.

HAS THE OKEH OF PARIS

What a difference it makes to feel oneself dressed in the true mode of Paris! This frock, fashioned in one of the new bordered wools, is as smart as it is simple. The neck is set in oval outline front and back, the strings being included in the shoulder seams. They may be tied in the front or back. Medium size requires 1 1/2 yard 54-inch material, with 3/4 yard silk or satin for the tie-strings.

SOME of you who are interested in a reducing diet will think I am trying to test your will power by writing about waffles today, because, as a rule, most people who have a tendency to be stout are very fond of waffles and lots of them.

Waffles are not only good to eat, but they often help you to offer hospitality on the spur of the moment. It is so easy to say, "Won't you stay for supper? We'll have waffles!" knowing that you can make good waffles and that you need very little else.

Waffles are very good not only for breakfast, but for supper any night in the week. They are delicious for a special Sunday night supper, during cold weather, and most acceptable to the crowd after a sleighing or skating party, or some other outing. My idea of a waffle breakfast either for the family or guests is—waffles—and very little else. This is the menu I suggest:

A Waffle Breakfast

Waffles with syrup or maple butter, fried apples with bacon and coffee. If you care to serve some other fruit besides the fried apples, oranges or grape fruit may be served as a first course.

In our kitchen we make a waffle that is delicious if well made, and yet is economical. Here is the recipe:

2 cups flour
2 eggs
1 tablespoon melted butter
3/4 teaspoon salt
1 1/2 cups milk
4 teaspoons baking powder

Sift the flour once before measuring. Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Add milk to the slightly beaten eggs. Mix well and add to dry ingredients. Add melted butter. Bake in well-greased hot waffle iron.

You will notice that the eggs are not beaten separately in this recipe. The old method was to beat separately and fold in the whites. We have learned by experience that this is unnecessary and only takes more time and leaves you more dishes to wash. I sometimes vary this method just a little and add the milk to the dry ingredients and then add the beaten eggs, instead of combining them. If you prefer to use sour milk, which will always make a tender product with a good brown color, you might try this recipe with the same directions for mixing as the sweet milk waffles:

1 1/4 cups flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 cup thick sour milk
2 eggs
1/2 teaspoon soda
3 tablespoons shortening

You may have been accustomed to dissolving the soda in the sour milk. When this is done, gas is always formed as the soda comes in contact with the acid. We use soda in our waffles because we want that gas to leaven or lighten the batter. If you stir the soda into the sour milk before you add it to the other ingredients, most of the gas passes off into the air and is lost. For that reason the better method is to put the soda with the other dry ingredients so that any gas formed will remain in the batter and make the waffles light.

Baking Is Important

Much of your success in making waffles will depend upon the baking and that is one thing you must learn by experience. One test which tells whether the iron is hot enough is to spill a little water upon it, and if it sizzles and sputters, the iron is hot enough. As a rule, however, you must bake one waffle to try out your iron. If you use an aluminum griddle, it is not necessary to grease it, thus avoiding the disagreeable smoke. In baking, always heat the iron after one waffle is done before another is added, for it must be hot to make crisp waffles, and waffles must be crisp or they will not be good waffles. Turn the iron very soon after the waffle has been put in.

Maple Butter Recipe

By jam, honey or syrup or any other sweet may be served. My suggestion for maple butter comes from old New England. It is delicious and can be made as follows: Add 2 tablespoons boiling water to one-half pound of maple sugar. Beat slowly into one-half pound of butter. This will make a rather granular, waxy mixture, that is very rich and has the good maple sugar flavor.

Counterfeiter's wares were recently discovered through the poor selling employed—all of which goes to show that education is necessary in all walks of life.

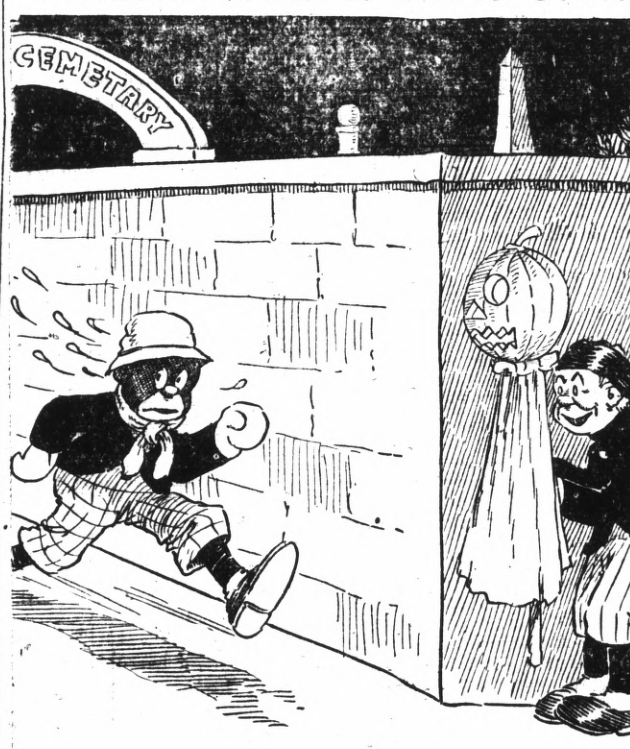

Judging from some of the addresses delivered over the radio they might be called "gas" stations.

"Satan in Sables" with Lowell Sherman is a picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS
Dolores Michael Yverdoff, wealthy heiress in Paris, becomes interested in Colette, pretty street vendor. Colette's younger brother, Paul, whom he has always shielded from life, arrives for a visit. To get away from the loose merry-making, Michael sends him up to bed. But Dolores, one of Michael's best friends, sees in Paul a tool for revenge and rams him. Michael, finding them, is angry and disturbed.

CHAPTER II—Continued

"It is past three, Paul, and as we have a busy day ahead I would expect that you get some sleep. I am sure that Mademoiselle will excuse you."

Paul glanced at his brother questioning. There was something mysterious in this. But obedience to Michael was a habit too deeply implanted to be thwarted on first thought. He turned to Dolores. "Goodnight, Mademoiselle, and remember, I shall count the hours until our next dance."

Hardly had Paul left the room when Michael whirled to Dolores, his face livid with anger. "I thought you had gone!" Dolores was all ice and snow and remote smiles.

"I was about to leave, Monsieur, when your brother returned here and courteously begged me to stay a while longer. He pleaded in the same convincing manner that you used to employ, and—well, you see!"

What a different Dolores was speaking now! Her voice rang vibrantly with cold defiance and challenge. "He found my presence a little more enjoyable than you seem to."

"I presume he did," said Michael, further upset and enraged as he caught sight of the emptied wine glasses. "Mon Dieu! You know that I

Luckily, Colette's fingers were nimble enough for her to make a living by fashioning artificial flowers at home. Sometimes Emile turned in a little money but Colette always took it with misgivings, wondering whether or not the money had been earned honestly. Last night Colette had obtained, for a hard earned franc, the services of a woman on the floor below to sit with Billy while she was out celebrating the Fete. But upon Colette's return, Billy had awakened and had seen her in the Col umbine costume.

"What a beautiful lady," he had said gravely, not recognizing his Aunt in the fluffy disguise as he sat up in bed and rubbed his sleepy eyes, "and what did you bring me?"

"Lots of things," Colette had cried, sitting on the bed beside him. "See!—here are apples, raisins, bon bons and this great big balloon. But you must go to sleep again, or you will find them flown by morning!"

Billy had fallen to sleep again almost immediately with an apple tightly clasped in each hand. "Well," Colette now chuckled with the brittle matter-of-factness of her kind, "the Fete is over—work once more! But first, her costume must be packed away."

Crossing to the chair where the shimmering garment of her play hour lay, she started to fold it. As she smoothed out each cherished ruffle, the gleam of a jewel caught her eye. She swiftly turned back the folds of lace, then gave a gasp of astonishment—for the precious stone of Michael's fob, the Yverdoff emerald, was there before her!

"How did it get here?" she kept stammering in frantic nervousness as she untangled the gem and held it up with a trembling hand. She noticed that the gold clasp, which evidently attached the fob to Michael's watch, had broken. The only solution that presented itself to her was that either when Michael was carrying her to the balcony, or when he was bathing her forehead, it must have caught in her dress.

A torrent of conflicting thoughts washed through her brain. To Michael, that jewel—save for sentimental reasons—meant nothing. He would miss it, yes, but he could easily buy another.

To her, the money for which it could be sold, offered a rare and enticing prospect of clothes, food, and visits to the country, not only for herself but for Billy. Why, the means with which she could realize all the fondest desires of her heart lay now in the palm of her hand—in this flashing emerald!

Then Colette suddenly and resolutely caught herself, and sent the pendulum of her thoughts swinging the other way. Would money thus gained bring happiness? Would it mean happiness if she and Billy were playing in the fields together, chasing butterflies and picking flowers, only to have the thought haunt her that their pleasure had been realized at the price of theft?

Earthquake and Tidal Waves Hits Bernard Maryland

BERNARD, Md., Jan. 9.—A slight earthquake followed by three tidal waves buffeted fishing boats anchored in the harbor here late today and gave local fishermen a scare. The total damage done however was slight. No lives were lost. The greatest damage was done to the boats although all of them managed to ride out the waves.

Shortly after the earth rumble water began to flow out of the harbor. The bottom of the harbor in places formerly covered by 6 and 8 feet of water was left exposed. After a brief lull an eight foot wave washed into the harbor and upon the shore. Two smaller waves one about 5 feet and one about 4 feet from the crest to the normal water followed in succession as the first wave receded.

VAUDEVILLE AND 'BRIGHT LIGHTS' AT CALIFORNIA

A lot of color, comedy, music and girls describes the mammoth all-feature bill of five acts which will be presented at the California Theatre today in conjunction with the screen feature "Bright Lights" featuring Charles Ray and Pauline Starke.

Following the bill up of the start are Carson and Co. in a burlesque mind reading and Magic act that is full of surprises. Every thing is offered in a spirit of fun and the audience participation in the good times from the start.

With a character make up to represent the well known Andy Gump of the Gump, a young musician offers a new presentation of some of the popular hits of the day to good effect.

"Eighteen Feet of Harmony" with the La Soli Trio as the principals is the combination of rich melodious voices that blend harmoniously with pleasing personalities. The Three Easters has just concluded a tour of the principal theatres of the East and Middle West and are now appearing for the first time on the Pacific Coast.

"The Girl and The Doctor" introduces Fred and Elsie Burke in a singing and dancing act that is replete with comedy. Pretty costumes with latest up to the minute music and numbers are commensurate in their effect.

To send the audience away with a thrill "The Aerial LaVails" will present some daring stunts on the straits and Roman Ring.

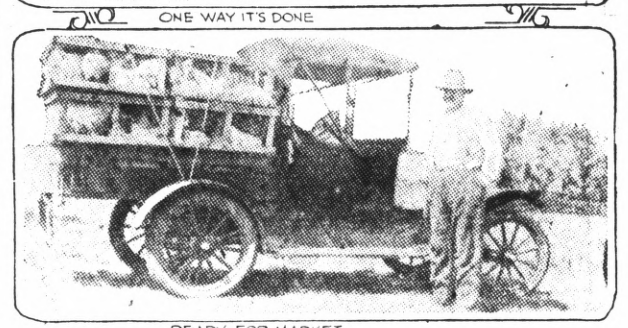

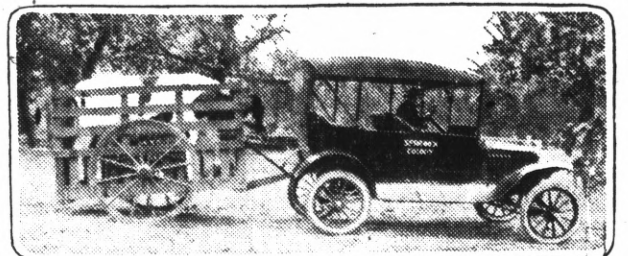

Robert Z. Leonard has become famous for dramatic pictures that appeal primarily to the heart and the eye. Since his death he has kept his audience with any well-meaning person, as he believes that a picture should be a picture, not a lesson.

Some of his dramatic pictures include "Bright Lights" and "The Girl and The Doctor" which are presented in the picture. Ray plays the part of the rule who unites the two worlds and creates the city slicker in order to impress his charming girl sweetheart.

CHARLIE WILL BE HERE IN THE "GOLD RUSH"

"The Gold Rush" Charlie Chaplin's new screen feature coming next Thursday Friday and Saturday to the California Theatre under United Artists Corporation release, is a symbolical autobiography by Chaplin himself.

With that genius which is peculiarly his own, and against the background of old Klondike gold rush days of Chaplin's conception, the greatest screen comedian has depicted with subtle tender and delicate masterstroke the struggle of man's eternal hunt for happiness, its heartbreaks and tears and its laughter and joy.

Charlie Chaplin of the derby, cane, baggy trousers, funny mustache and waddling walk, who has made the whole world laugh more than any other mere comedian that ever lived, has built in "The Gold Rush" a delightful structure of fun and laughter.

On the tragedy and misery suffered by the pioneers who first journeyed to the ice-bound Alaska, and on the drama of the soul sufferings of the "sourdough" who braved mountains, ice, snow and starvation and death in their mad rush for gold, Chaplin has built the funniest and most hilarious comedy of his career.

"He has clad himself in the role of a hard-boiled sourdough who chases rainbows of the soul and heart in the midst of a mob that chases one thing only—gold and nothing but gold. Pathos and suffering are converted into comedy and laughter—there is a laugh in every one of the eight thousand or so feet of "The Gold Rush."

Richard Dix Star In Film Showing At the Richmond

"A Man Must Live" directed by Paul Shione from James Creel's story "Jungle Law" by J. A. R. Wylie, will be the feature at the Richmond Theatre today. It is Richard Dix's second starring production for Paramount. Jacqueline Logan and Edna Murphy and others appear in support.

When Geoffrey Farnell (Dix) returns to America after the Great War he spends months in fruitless search for a job during which time he all but starves to death. He is given a job as a reporter on a paper run by the unscrupulous John Hardcastle. At almost the same time he meets "Mops" Collins, once the toast of the town, now a dancer in a cheap cabaret. She is ill and Farnell cares for her, although he is hardly earning enough to keep himself.

Several weeks pass. One day Hardcastle calls left into his office and warns him that unless he brings in a "five" story pretty soon he will be fired. Farnell suddenly realizes that life is but a jungle where every animal keeps alive by preying on other animals. He can't afford to let anything stop him from getting this story—a man must live.

The picture goes on to show how Dix finds his story and almost ruins things in general for himself. George Nash, Charles Beyer and others appear in the supporting cast.

Other features in the same program include "The Giddy Giddy" a Billy Dooley "laugh month" comedy; "Kinograms" world news events.

Pennies In Fuses Start Serious Fire In Residence Here

All electric wiring was burned from the home of Mrs. Lillian Mortzo, 460 Eighth street yesterday afternoon, but due to the quick work of the fire department no damage was done. Chief W. P. Cooper stated that he believed the blaze was caused from two pennies that had been placed in the fuse boxes on the front porch.

Abatement Looms For Two Places

The padlock looms for the doors of Dan Ross's establishment in San Pablo. As an outgrowth of alleged violations of the Volstead act, District Attorney A. H. Tuning yesterday filed abatement proceedings in the superior court at Martinez against the place. The suit was filed against Dan Ross, the operator, and Frank J. Lewis and Frederick Weber, the owners. Abatement proceedings were also filed against Frank Underwood's place in Port Costa, of which A. A. Frates is the owner.

DEAF CAN HEAR IN NEW THEATRE

Impaired Hearing Now No Bar to Enjoyment of Theatre Guild's Plays as Handicap Is Overcome

One of the first hardships encountered by the hard of hearing has always been the loss of social entertainment, such as the theatre. Impaired hearing has more and more forced the individual to lead a somewhat solitary life, cut off from the arts and recreations of music and the drama. The first definite and lasting step to restore the theatre to the hard of hearing has been made by the Theatre Guild in the new Guild Theatre in New York through the use of vacuum tube amplifiers.

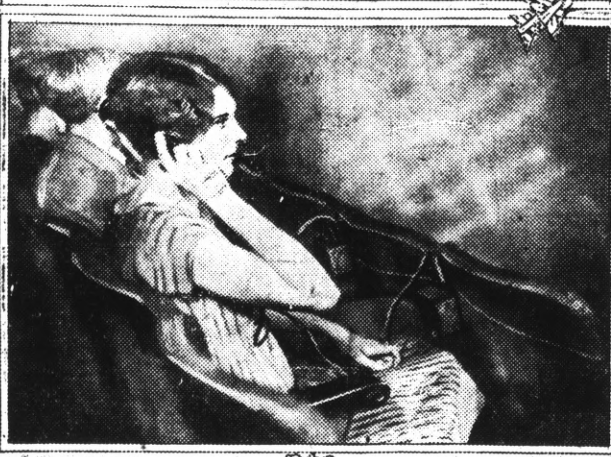

Twelve seats in an excellent part of the orchestra are equipped for the benefit of individuals whose hearing is impaired. They have only to apply for seats in this section, obtain small ear receivers at the box office, and connect the ear receivers with inconspicuous boxes on the rear of the row of seats next in front. The system employed is an adaptation of the Public Address System, made available by the Western Electric Company, whose engineers installed it.

Two microphones at the front of the stage pick up every sound; and the sounds are amplified by means of vacuum tubes under the stage. The magnified sounds are conveyed by wires to the special seats, where they reach the earphones of the hard of hearing theatregoers.

One of the striking facts about the system is that it is so thoroughly inconspicuous. The ear receivers are small and light without a headband, and they need not be connected at all until the lights have dimmed and the play begun. Thus the persons of impaired hearing are, to all intents and purposes, exactly on a par with the rest of the audience.

The new Guild Theatre opened last year with Shaw's play "Caesar and Cleopatra." It has since sheltered Shaw's "Arms and the Man," and now "The Glass Slipper" by Molnar. These plays have all been recognized as more than passing entertainment, and they are representative of the aims of the Guild as a non-commercial organization. Thus, persons of impaired hearing are to have opened to them first of all what is most worth while in the theatre, and they will have an opportunity to enjoy the most important as well as the most popular of new productions.

The effectiveness of the Public Address System for this purpose was tested some time ago at a trial installation in the National Theatre for a theatre party of the New York League for the Hard of Hearing. The success of this test was so marked that it established beyond question the usefulness of the system and its desirability from the standpoint of the hard of hearing.

GOOD YEAR IN SIGHT, BUT THRIFT STILL NECESSARY

By S. W. STRAUS,
President American Society for Thrift.

OUR country at large has been very prosperous during the past year and the business outlook for the coming year is bright.

Almost every division of trade and commerce report a good twelve month just closed. Labor is well employed, well paid and for the most part stabilized and satisfied. Wages are high prices are being maintained for all commodities and our people are handling a great deal of money.

But the mere handling of large sums of money in the matter of saving and spending is not sufficient to make for permanent prosperity for either the nation or the individual.

When times are good, as the common expression goes, there is always greater opportunity and more temptation to spend as you go. It is, in fact, harder for most people to save when they are prosperous than when they are not.

When the business sun shines high and strong it is hard for some people to think of the rainy days bound to come.

It would seem to be easy to make the most of our good fortune and yet it requires considerable strength of character and forethought to do this in just the right way.

In times of peace the wise soldier prepares for war. In times of abundant business the wise business man and true philosopher prepares for the day when business is bound to slow down.

The present times call for thrift. It has been the universal human experience that thrift is less popular and more difficult to practice when we are in prosperity than otherwise.

No man was ever too prosperous or too successful to be beyond the need of thrift.

A Triumph!

No Car of Recent Years Has Aroused Such Interest

There is no parallel in our entire experience—or in all the 17 years of Paige and Jewett success—to the keen and universal interest shown in The New-Day Jewett Six.

Already this car has been viewed by a greater number, we believe, than have attended the introductory showing of any automobile. Throughout the country, many thousands purchased New-Day Jewetts during the first two weeks—more actual sales, we believe, than have ever been made in a like period on a new car.

Such interest is natural, for The New-Day Jewett is a most unusual new car. It is truly a new-day automobile—designed for today's motoring needs and admirably fitted to meet them.

To gain full appreciation of the remarkable results fine Paige engineering has attained in new-day driving ease and brilliant performance, you must not only see this beautiful Jewett, but ride in and drive it. If you have not yet been able to do this, delay no longer!

BENNY LEONARD TAKES ONE ON CHIN FOR CHARITY FROM HOLLANDESKY, VETERAN OF 1,039 BATTLES

Benny Leonard, retired undefeated nightfighter champion of the world, appeared in the ring at a charity show in Los Angeles. His opponent was Abe Hollandsky, also a retired boxer, who is pictured planting one on Leonard.

The bout was a charity affair for the benefit of the East Bay cities themselves.

How can this need be met WITHOUT LOSS OF TIME?

We should remember that the loss of every month and every year in this regard means lost headway in civic growth.

New York depends upon subways and elevated lines for rapid transit.

Chicago depends upon elevated lines and street cars.

But the minimum cost of subway construction is $1,000,000 a mile.

The minimum cost of elevated lines is more than $500,000 a mile.

Obviously these expenditures are desirable and efficient for mass transportation in large population centers, are not immediately practical here.

Surface trolley cars operating in the middle of the streets are rapidly becoming obsolete.

This is not a theory; it is a fact, evident in great cities where urban transportation is following a new trend.

In the face of this test the surface trolley car is fading slowly out of the picture.

In Boston the other day workmen tore up a street railway line that had been in continuous operation since 1832.

That line saw the coming of the trolley car. It saw the horse car, and the electric trolley car came in, despite the predictions of the town wisecracks that electric cars would never be as practical and dependable as horse cars.

And now it has seen the trolley car go. A motor bus line has been put on the run. The buses were found to be more economical, faster and the creators of less congestion.

It is to the motor bus that modern cities are looking for fast transit service in cases where enormous expensive subways and elevated lines are not feasible.

For the motor bus the routes are ready. Only the operating units themselves are needed.

Oakland has seen a few tentative experiments made in motor bus passenger service.

The question naturally arises: What is the real status of the motor bus, and what are other cities thinking about it and doing about it?

In order to answer this question intelligently, The Post-Enquirer has investigated the motor bus situation in several leading cities, going to authentic and official sources for the information to be presented here in this series of articles.

of New York. They will battle in the other ten round engagement of the evening. Both fights carry a great deal of interest.

ST. LOUIS WINS

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Jan. 9.—The signing of Ernie Nevers by the St. Louis Americans as a pitcher is a decided triumph for the club. Both the New York and the Cincinnati Nationals were doing their best to get him. Nevers cannot be termed a veteran on the mound yet but it won't be many years until the Stanford football star will be up among the best.

MICKEY CAN'T FIGHT

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—The New York Boxing commission still refuses to allow Mickey Walker to go through with his fight with Tommy Milligan on January 22, in spite of the fact that Walker's sore toe seems, on the advice of doctors, to be well again. Walker's refusal to make terms to meet Milligan at Christmas time, is given as the real reason for the ban against him.

This odd and unparalleled situation makes the need all the more acute here for some immediate and practical form of rapid transit for the benefit of the East Bay cities themselves.

Baby Saved From Heart Trouble Martinez, Nov. 6, 1925. Our baby, Myrtle, had been ailing for about two years, during which time we had taken her to many physicians, none of whom knew what was the matter with her.

Myrtle steadily grew worse. Her heart beat rapidly and noisily, she had but little blood, and the pallor of her face was like the whiteness of a sheet of paper. She finally became so weak that she could neither walk nor eat.

Some doctors thought it might be her teeth, but they had all come through and she was getting worse every day.

We were recommended to see Fong Wan. He found that she was a suffering from heart trouble. She has taken the Fong Wan Herbs for three months and is in fine health.
